Welcome to the inaugural edition of the University of Baltimore School of Law's Center for Families, Children and the Courts (CFCC) Truancy Court Program (TCP) e-newsletter. We at CFCC are proud of the powerful partnership among the TCP, Maryland's judiciary, and some of the public school systems throughout the state.

The TCP has been a strong presence in the Baltimore City Public Schools for nearly five years, and this year CFCC is operating the program in Montgomery and Anne Arundel Counties after receiving a federal earmark for expansion. CFCC also hopes to expand to four new schools in other jurisdictions.

In this issue, we tell you about who, what, where, when, and why. We introduce you to our key personnel, describe the TCP process, inform you about program activities, and explain how you can get involved.

Come along with us!
