Elective Concentrations

The Elective Concentrations track provides for study of specific areas of the law. Besides the required courses, students will usually enroll in many of the U.S. Practice courses in fall semester to provide a framework of U.S. law and serve as a basis for elective courses taken in the second semester.

An LL.M. LOTUS student in Elective Concentrations will be assigned a faculty advisor who will assist the student in designing a course of study from the law school's course offerings that meets the student's academic and career goals. Electives may be chosen from any courses offered by the School of Law for which the student has met the course prerequisites or otherwise has an adequate background. Students may use the electives to concentrate their study of U.S. law in one of the following areas:

- Business Law
- Criminal Practice
- Electronic Commerce
- Environmental Law
- Estate Planning
- Family Law
- Intellectual Property
- International Law
- Litigation & Advocacy
- Public Service
- Real Estate Practice
